EAP Euregional Prize for Architecture 2017

The Euregional Prize for Architecture is a cross-border prize awarded annually to the best graduate project in one of the five participating schools of architecture in the so-called Euregio Maas-Rhine, the European region spanning parts of Germany, the Netherlands and Belgium. An international jury of professionals will select the best graduate projects from a total of 29 projects and submit these nominations for the architectural award.

The Euregional Prize for Architecture has been awarded since 1991 and has been supported by an inter-institutional cooperation since 1996. The close interaction between education, professional practice, architectural institutes and schools of architecture has resulted in a unique cross-border project.

The prize aims to offer talented students, such as recently graduated architects, engineers and urban developers (located in the Euregion Maas-Rhine) a platform that will facilitate their entry into the professional world. It is in this very same platform that the participating institutions are enabled to present themselves to an international audience and to gauge each other’s teaching methods.

Organising the annual prize-giving ceremony and the exhibition of the participating projects alternately in one of the Euregion Maas-Rhine countries, ensures the reinforcement and advancement of the European character of cross-border cooperation, beyond the interests of the people involved.

In 2017, the awarding ceremony of the 27th Euregional Prize for Architecture will take place at Maastricht Academy of Fine Arts & Design, Herkenrodeplein 13, 6211 PW Maastricht.
